Minnesota DNR Wildlife Research Manager Lou Cornicelli, Ph.D., to speak on Minnesota Deer Management and Future Research at the U of M, Crookston on Tues., December 4, 2012; Presentation begins at 7 p.m. in Bede Ballroom, Sargeant Student Center

By Itollefs on Monday, November 26, 2012 Whether interested in wildlife management as a career or in learning more about the specifics of managing a deer population, everyone is invited to a presentation by Lou Cornicelli, Ph.D., who works with the Minnesota Department of Natural Resources (DNR) as a wildlife research manager. Cornicelli will present on Tuesday, December 4, 2012, at 7 p.m. in Bede Ballroom, Sargeant Student Center. Topics will include Minnesota deer management history, estimating population sizes and management, along with a look at future wildlife research in the state. The event is free and open to the public. Prior to becoming the DNR's wildlife research manager, Cornicelli was the big game program leader, a position he held for ten years. He is an expert in deer population management, and as the big game program leader, he was responsible for managing deer, elk, and moose seasons and populations. Cornicelli's presentation is sponsored by the U of M, Crookston Student Chapter of The Wildlife Society.
